

"Can Do" at it's Worst

I honestly tried to think of something nice to say about this photo, but just couldn't think of anything. So let's analyze it, shall we?

This prime example of human ingenuity shows a man standing barefoot on a metal ladder in a swimming pool with an electric drill held loosely in his hands...the plug gingerly tied and dangling next to his dripping wet, half soaked torso. You have to give him credit though...at least he's wearing safety goggles.

If you've got a dangerous job to do, at least minimize the risks. Use Operational Risk Management to help reduce the danger.